About the survey

The Survey of Londoners 2021-22 was a research study commissioned by the Mayor of London to help better understand the lives of Londoners.

This pen portrait is intended to provide a snapshot of a particular group of Londoners, as captured at the time of the Survey of Londoners 2021-22.

It was an online and paper self-completion survey of adults aged 16 and over in London.

The survey, which received responses from 8,630 Londoners, aimed to assess the impact of COVID-19 and associated restrictions on key social outcomes for Londoners, not available from other data sources.

Fieldwork began on the 24th November 2021 and extended into February 2022 to accommodate late responses.

The Survey of Londoners 2021-22 took place just before the full effects of the cost-of-living crisis began to set in. The situations of Londoners will have changed since this report has been published.

Base sizes based on 627 young Londoners aged 16-24, unless otherwise stated.

This report covers:

- Profile
- Financial situation and the labour market
- Strong communities
- Mental health and wellbeing
